How To Find Your Windows Or Office Product Keys?

Most commercial software comes with some form of protection to avoid unauthorized copying and installation. Although software manufacturers use different methods to achieve this kind of protection, one of the most common approaches involves asking the user to enter a product key or serial number, which is the case for both Microsoft Windows and Office.

If you upgrade from Windows 7 or 8, Windows 10 is activated automatically online. You are not required to enter a product key, as you are entitled to Windows 10 by virtue of having a genuine consumer copies of previous Windows versions (7 or 8). If, however, you are planning to reinstall Windows, you will need to find your product key. Try to remember how you purchased your Windows operating system. If you bought a copy of Microsoft Windows or Office, the first place to look is on the CD or DVD case. Product keys are usually on a sticker and consist of 25 characters. If you purchased a PC with Windows already installed, then look for a multicoloured sticker on your PC. For Microsoft Office, the product key should be a sticker on the installation CD. You can also contact Microsoft directly to get a new product key. Alternatively, there are other ways shown in this article.

Table of Contents:

It is recommended to run a free scan with Combo Cleaner - a tool to detect malware and fix computer errors. You will need to purchase the full version to remove infections and eliminate computer errors. Free trial available.

Extract Your Product Key Using Magical Jelly Bean Key Finder.

If you cannot find your key but the software is installed, use the Magical Jelly bean Key Finder program, a freeware utility that retrieves the Product Key used to install Windows from your registry. It also has a community-updated configuration file that retrieves product keys for many other applications. Another feature is the ability to retrieve product keys from unbootable Windows installations.

Download it from here.

Install the program and launch it. The program will scan all installations and find associated product keys, including Windows and Office. When the scan is complete, it will display your programs and information, including product keys.

Find Your Product Key Using Command Prompt Or PowerShell.

You can retrieve your Windows product key by entering command Command Prompt or Powershell. To get your key through Command Prompt, go to Search and type "prompt". When the Command Prompt window opens, type this line: "wmic path softwarelicensingService get OA3xOriginalProductKey" and press Enter. You should see your product key below.

To get your product key through PowerShell, type "power" in Search and click it. You will need to type different command for this one, but it is the same process as for Command Prompt. Copy this line and press Enter on your keyboard: "(Get-WmiObject -query 'select * from SoftwareLicensingService').OA3xOriginalProductKey".

These two methods may not work for some users, but since it takes only a minute, you should give it a try!

Find Your Product Key Using Notepad.

First, open Notepad. You can open it quickly by typing "notepad" in Search. Copy and Paste the text below into your empty Notepad window and click "File", select "Save as. " .

Set WshShell = CreateObject("WScript.Shell") MsgBox ConvertToKey(WshShell.RegRead("HKLM\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Windows NT\CurrentVersion\DigitalProductId")) Function ConvertToKey(Key) Const KeyOffset = 52 i = 28 Chars = "BCDFGHJKLMQRSTVWXYZ2346789" Do Cur = 0 x = 14 Do Cur = Cur * 256 Cur = Key(x + KeyOffset) + Cur Key(x + KeyOffset) = (Cur \ 24) And 255 Cur = Cur Mod 24 x = x - 1 Loop While x >= 0 i = i - 1 KeyOutput = Mid(Chars, Cur + 1, 1) & KeyOutput If (((29 - i) Mod 6) = 0) And (i - 1) Then i = i - 1 KeyOutput = "-" & KeyOutput End If Loop While i >= 0 ConvertToKey = KeyOutput End Function

Then choose where you wish to save and how (this one is important). In "Save as type:", select "All files", and then choose the filename. Use any name, but type ".vbs" as the extension so it is saved as a VBS file.

Now that you have your file saved, double-click it and your product key will appear.

Do You Need A Product Key To Clean Install Windows 10?

Microsoft retains your computer's "digital signature" from the initial upgrade - it recognises the combination of components when you do a clean install and automatically activates Windows. You can skip the screen that asks for a product key at the start of the installation process. Windows 10 should activate as long as you have not made any major changes to your PC (such as changing the motherboard).

Not Sure If Your Windows Operating System Is Activated?

Whether you are using Windows 7 or Windows 10, you can easily check if your version of Windows is activated. Right-click on "This PC" (Windows 10) or "Computer" (Windows 7) and click "Properties". You will see if Windows is activated at the bottom of the properties window.

Activate Windows.

In the meantime, check out what's available for Windows 10 on the Windows 10 tab.

Activation helps verify that your copy of Windows is genuine and hasn't been used on more devices than the Microsoft Software License Terms allow.

Checking your activation status.

You'll first want to find out if your Windows 10 is activated and linked to your Microsoft account.

It is essential that you link your Microsoft account to the Windows 10 license on your device. Linking your Microsoft account with your digital license enables you to reactivate Windows using the Activation troubleshooter whenever you make a significant hardware change.

To check activation status in Windows 10, select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security and then select Activation . Your activation status will be listed next to Activation.

You'll see one of these activation status messages on the Activation page:

Windows is activated.

You are activated.

Microsoft account is not linked.

Windows is activated with a digital license.

You are activated.

Your Microsoft account is not linked to your digital license.

Windows is activated with a digital license linked to your Microsoft account.

You are activated.

Your Microsoft account is already linked to your digital license.

Windows is not activated.

You are not activated.

You will see an error message explaining the failure.

You might need to purchase Windows 10 to activate.

If you need to purchase a license for your device, see "Purchase a Windows 10 license."

If you have purchased a license for this device already and still receive an error message, continue to Methods of activation.

To link your Microsoft account, follow these instructions:

Sign in as an administrator to add your Microsoft account. To confirm you're using an administrator account, select the Start button, then select Settings > Accounts > Your info . Under your name, you'll see Administrator . If you're not an administrator, see Create a local user or administrator account.

Confirm that the administrator account is also your Microsoft account by checking to see if an email address is displayed above Administrator . If an email address is displayed, this is a Microsoft account. If not, you're logged in with a local account. If you don't yet have a Microsoft account, see How to create a new Microsoft account.

Once you confirm that you're an administrator and using your Microsoft account, go back to the Activation page, select Add an account , enter your Microsoft account and password, and then select Sign in .

After your Microsoft account has been added, on the Activation page you'll see Windows is activated with a digital license linked to your Microsoft account .

Methods of activation.

Depending on how you got your copy of Windows 10, you'll need either a digital license or a 25-character product key to activate it. Without one of these, you won't be able to activate your device.

A digital license (called a digital entitlement in Windows 10, Version 1511) is a method of activation in Windows 10 that doesn't require you to enter a product key.

A product key is a 25-character code used to activate Windows. What you'll see is PRODUCT KEY: XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX.

After determining which activation method you use, follow the steps in the corresponding Activate using a digital license or Activate using a product key.

Your activation method depends on how you got your copy of Windows 10.

If you got Windows 10 by:

Upgrading to Windows 10 for free from an eligible device running a genuine copy of Windows 7 or Windows 8.1.

If you associated or signed onto a Microsoft Account or associated your MSA with your digital license, that will be your MSA containing the digital license.

Buying a Windows 10 Pro upgrade from the Microsoft Store app and successfully activated Windows 10.

When purchasing from Microsoft Store, a confirmation email was sent to confirm the purchase. That email address (MSA) will contain the digital license.

Being a Windows Insider and upgrading to the newest Windows 10 Insider Preview build on an eligible device that was running an activated earlier version of Windows and Windows 10 Preview.

The email address that you used for your Windows Insider login will likely be the MSA containing your digital license.

Buying genuine Windows 10 from the Microsoft Store app.

When purchasing from Microsoft Store, a confirmation email was sent to confirm the purchase. That email address (MSA) will contain the digital license.

Buying a PC that came with Windows 10.

Find your product key either on the device packaging or on the Certificate of Authenticity (COA) attached to your device.

Buying a box copy of Windows 10 from an authorized retailer.

Find your product key on a label inside the Windows 10 box.

Buying a digital copy of Windows 10 from an authorized retailer.

Find your product key in the confirmation email you received after buying Windows 10 or in a digital locker accessible through the retailer's website.

A digital license will be given to your device for Windows 10 based on the valid product key you entered.

Having a Volume Licensing agreement for Windows 10 or MSDN subscription.

Your product key is available through the web portal for your program.

Buying a new or refurbished device running Windows 10.

Your product key is preinstalled on your device, included with the device packaging, or included as a card or on the Certificate of Authenticity (COA) attached to the device.

If you bought a refurbished PC, the refurbisher, not Microsoft, must provide you a product key.

Buying from the Microsoft Store online.

Find your product key in the confirmation email that contains the order history.

If you don't have a digital license or a product key, you can purchase a Windows 10 digital license after installation finishes. Here's how:

Select the Start button.

Select Settings > Update & Security > Activation .

Select Go to Store .

This opens the Microsoft Store app where you can purchase a Windows 10 digital license.

Activate using a digital license.

Digital licenses are associated with your hardware and linked to your Microsoft account, so there's nothing you need to find on your PC. You're all set once your PC is connected to the internet and you log in to your Microsoft account.

If you are using a digital license linked to a Microsoft account, you can run setup and skip the product key option by selecting I don't have a product key . When you sign in with your Microsoft account and connect to the internet, you will be activated.

If you have a digital license for your device, you can reinstall the same edition of Windows 10 on this device without entering a product key.

Make sure that Windows 10 is activated before you try to reinstall it. To find out, select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security > Activation . You'll be able to confirm that your Windows 10 has been activated and that your Microsoft account is associated with your digital license.

Here are the possible messages that display on the Activation page:

Windows is activated with a digital license.

Your Microsoft account is not linked to your digital license. Follow instructions for Linking your Microsoft account.

Windows is activated with a digital license linked to your Microsoft account.

Your Microsoft account is already linked to your digital license.

If Windows 10 isn't activated on your device, see Get help with Windows 10 activation errors for more info.

If your digital license is not linked to your Microsoft account, follow the steps under Checking your Activation status, Linking your Microsoft account.

Once you have your account linked, then you can run setup to reinstall Windows 10. For more info about how to create installation media to reinstall Windows 10, go to the Microsoft software download website. When creating installation media, make sure to choose the edition of Windows 10 that matches the edition already installed on your device.

During reinstallation, if you're asked to enter a product key, you can skip this step by selecting I don't have a product key . Windows 10 will automatically activate online after the installation is complete. If you linked your digital license with your Microsoft account, be sure to sign in to the Microsoft account that is linked to the digital license.

When you make a significant hardware change to your device, such as replacing the motherboard, Windows 10 might no longer be activated.

Make sure you associate your Microsoft account to your digital license to prepare for hardware changes. The association enables you to reactivate Windows using the Activation troubleshooter if you make a significant hardware change later. For more info, see Reactivating Windows 10 after a hardware change.

If you don't have a digital license, you'll use a product key to activate.

Activate using a product key.

A product key is a 25-character code, that looks like this:

PRODUCT KEY: XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX-XXXXX.

During installation, you'll be prompted to enter a product key. Or, after installation, to enter the product key, select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security > Activation > Update product key > Change product key.

To locate your product key, see the product key table in Activation methods, What activation method do I use, a digital license or a product key?

Note: Microsoft only keeps a record of product keys if you purchased from the Microsoft online store. You can find out if you purchased from Microsoft in your Microsoft account Order history. For more help, see Find your Windows product key.

If you have a product key, then you can use Change product key to activate Windows 10 in each of the following scenarios. Below is supplemental information that might help you with activation:

You'll need to use a valid product key to activate Windows 10 on a device that has never had an activated copy of Windows 10 on it.

You'll also need to use a valid product key if you're installing an edition of Windows 10 that wasn't previously activated on the device. For example, you'll need a valid product key to install and activate Windows 10 Pro on a device that had Windows 10 Home installed.

During the installation, you'll be asked to enter a valid product key. After the installation is complete, Windows 10 will automatically be activated online. To check activation status in Windows 10, select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security > Activation .

If Windows 10 isn't activated on your device, see Get help with Windows 10 activation errors for more info.

Note: In some cases, you might need to enter the Windows 10 product key that either came with the device packaging, was included as a card, or that appears on the Certificate of Authenticity (COA) attached to the device. If you don't have a Windows 10 product key, you'll have the option to buy one during installation.

When you buy a refurbished device running Windows 10, you'll need to activate Windows using the product key on the Certificate of Authenticity (COA) that's attached to your device.

If your original hardware manufacturer (OEM) changed the motherboard for you, your PC should reactivate automatically. If it doesn't activate, your OEM might have provided a COA card with a 25-character key under a gray scratch cover. Follow these steps to get activated.:

Note: To remove the gray coating that conceals the product key, gently scratch it off using a coin or your fingernail.

Select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security > Activation .

Select Change product key .

Type in the product key found on the COA and follow the instructions.

During reinstallation, you'll be asked to enter a product key. When you type in your product key, you will have an activated edition of Windows 10.

If you finished setup and did not enter your product key, you can still enter your product key. Select the Start button, and then select Activation > Update product key > Change product key .

When you make a significant hardware change to your device, such as replacing the motherboard, Windows 10 might no longer be activated.

If you do not reinstall Windows, then you can select the Start button, and then select Activation > Update product key > Change product key to reactivate your device. Otherwise you can enter your product key during installation of Windows.

If your original hardware manufacturer (OEM) changed the motherboard for you, your PC should reactivate automatically. If it doesn't activate, your OEM might have provided a COA card that has a gray coating over a 25-character key. Follow these steps to get activated.

Note: To remove the gray coating that conceals the product key, gently scratch it off using a coin or your fingernail.

Select the Start button, and then select Settings > Update & Security > Activation .

Windows 10 Product Key Free Download (32/64 bit)

In a case when you upgraded your PC from Windows 7, 8, 8.1 to Windows 10 from a genuine copy then your license will not tie to your Microsoft account, but it will with the hardware you upgrade on. So you will not find any Windows 10 product activation key. But The Ultimate PID Checker or Product Key the third party product key generating software will show you generic product keys like VK7JG-NPHTM-C97JM-9MPGT-3V66T for Windows 10 Pro edition or TX9XD-98N7V-6WMMQ6-BX7FG-H8Q99 for Windows 10 Home.

Another question is what will happens if one wants to clean install Windows 10 on the same machine? Then a user can do such thing by downloading an ISO file, and saving it on any portable drive or DVD or USB and then running the setup for a clean install.

While installation, windows ask you to provide Windows 10 serial key. Here you have to skip the step and completes the installation. Once the process completes, a copy of Windows will activate automatically when you connect it with an internet connection. Why it happens because the hardware is the same.

This method is legal. You can read these articles to know :

Settings (press Windows and I keys together) >> Update & security >> Activation.

Control Panel >> System and Security >> System

If you want to change the hardware, then you need to contact Microsoft support and notify them of the change to get your copy activated. Otherwise, if you have your old Windows 7 or 8 product key with you, then you can do the clean install on the other hardware provided you have updated your copy of installed Windows 10 to November 2015 Update or later then it.

If you bought a license of Windows 10, then you must have a unique product key with you either from Windows Store, MSDN, DreamSpark,

TechNet and the likes so you can use it while installation. In case if you lost it then there is no need to worry. As I said above in such a case you can use third-party software like ProduKey. In case if you end up selling your PC that had Windows 10 activated using a retail product key then it is impossible to find Windows 10 key. But the good news is you can link license of Windows 10 to your Microsoft account with the new update so if you buy a new pc, then sign-in to your Microsoft account that had a product key for Windows 10 and activates it.
