How to Select the Best Video Streaming Service.

While YouTube is the most popular service with its over 8.6 billion monthly visits worldwide, it doesn't necessarily mean that it offers high-quality content. Modern streaming platforms provide users with a stunning variety of TV shows and original TV series, so you need to think carefully about which of them you want to subscribe to.

Your final choice will largely depend on your viewing tastes, the subscription price and the video quality. The streaming services such as fixthephoto.com have user-friendly interfaces and offer live and on-demand videos, frequent title updates, award-winning shows and movies, original news broadcasts.

How much money should you spend?

As there are just too many options available, you might face a wide choice when trying to decide how to plan your budget and which option to select, especially if you don't earn megabucks. While the current market is mostly dominated by Netflix, HBO and Hulu, other streaming services are slowly gaining traction as well.

According to the statistics, most Americans subscribe to 3-4 video streaming platforms. As such services are much less expensive than live television, it's highly likely that such platforms will become a sole source of entertainment in the future. On average, it costs about $15 to pay for a monthly subscription, so it's up to you to decide how many services you need to watch.

The best news streaming services.

If you are thinking about canceling your cable TV subscription but still want to watch your favorite news broadcasts, you might enjoy watching such free streaming news channels as NewsOn, Newsy, Haystack TV, Plex, Al Jazeera or Bloomberg. Some of them are available only in the US, while others have sub-channels all around the world. You can find more information on bestalternatives.com.

While CNBC, FOX Business and Bloomberg focus mostly on financial news, only the latter has a free version. Plex is the best option for those who are interested in more nuanced reporting as it lets you watch news stories from over 190 channels and creates personalized recommendations.

Which streaming service to choose for watching sports.

Cord-cutters will be thrilled to learn that the best streaming services offer impressive sports coverage. With Hulu, you can watch live and on-demand sports shows, while Amazon Prime Video is a great option for football fans as it streams NFL games.

Remember that there are plenty of specialized streaming services as well. FuboTV is perfect for those who are interested in a variety of broadcasts and prefer watching videos in 4K quality. HBO features some pretty engaging sports shows, but you will need to find another service to watch live broadcasts. To make the right choice, you need to find a service that streams sports events you might be interested in.

Some streaming services feature remote co-watching tools, which allow you to enjoy your favorite shows with your friends and family members even while COVID-19 restrictions are still in place. For instance, HBO has Scener, Netflix Party comes with a special Chrome extension, while Hulu, Amazon Prime and Plex also offer special co-viewing features.
