The Indian Government, by means of its Ministry of Electronics & Information Technology, has decided to digitize its population to literate them digitally as soon as possible. A good way of doing so is taking all the administration's bureaucracy to the digital terrain.

Digitization of administrative paperwork.

One of the channels to do so is by using an app of the likes of DigiLocker for Android. With this app, they intend all bureaucratic processes to be carried out digitally, reducing the amount of paper used. It's a publication and document and certificate verification platform that helps us to save using physical supports, allowing users to always access whatever they need.

To be able to use it, we need to sign up as a user and it intends to cover all governmental administration areas. We can check notifications of our interest, publications, and also those documents generated by the citizen.
